

Keshet Teachers

Milka Eliav has been a Hebrew Lecturer at the University of Michigan since 2001. Born and raised in Israel, she earned a degree in English (language and literature) as well as a teaching certificate from Bar Ilan University. This is her fifth year as Keshet coordinator.

Ilan Rosenberg has been teaching Hebrew at the University of Michigan since 1996, and at the Hebrew Day School of Ann Arbor for seven years, as well as in other organizations in town. This is his fourth year at Keshet.

Pauli Weizman has been teaching Hebrew at U-M since 1987. She came to Ann Arbor about 20 years ago from Israel and has three grown children. Pauli has degrees in Hebrew linguistics, Teaching English as a Second Language, and Social Work.

Anat Hodish is a native Israeli with a BA in special education. She taught in Tel Aviv in both formal and informal settings until moving to Ann Arbor seven years ago. Here, Anat taught at the Hebrew Day School, among other places, and took part in props making for the local Civic Theater. Anat has recently enrolled in Eastern Michigan University to study Product-Design. This is her third year at Keshet.

Keshet Funding

Keshet is funded by a grant from the Jewish Federation of Greater Ann Arbor, and co-sponsored by Beth Israel Congregation and Temple Beth Emeth.

Keshet thankfully acknowledges donations from parents and from other generous community members who care about quality Hebrew learning and teaching.

Earn High School Credit!

Keshet fulfills the requirements of the Community Resource (CR) department of the Ann Arbor Public Schools. This means that we have their permission to offer our classes for credit. Students who attend regularly are granted high school credit as if they took any foreign language at school. Keshet is proud to be a part of this unique CR possibility and adheres to all CR requirements.

Keshet Donation

A requirement of the CR program prohibits teachers from charging tuition. Keshet is indeed fortunate to be a part of the generous Ann Arbor community, and to be a beneficiary of the synagogues and other institutions. However, to make sure we get the best teachers around and to help defray costs, we kindly suggest a donation of $350 per student/per semester.

Be a part of this growing program! Get your Hebrew in shape and come schmooze with other "Keshetnicks" every Monday night!
